WQ's own musicians play to enthusiastic crowds at Way out West Fest

Originally published by Sally Gall, Queensland Country Life.

They grew up working in shearing sheds and mustering sheep at Muttaburra and Aramac, but two of the participants in the Rise Up Showcase held in Winton last week have forsaken that for their country music dreams.

Lilly Alexander and Tane-Rua Beatty-Smith, both graduates of the Longreach State High School, performed before live audiences throughout Winton's Way Out West Festival, with Tane-Rua finishing as the runner-up in the emerging artist challenge.

Gympie's Alison Jensen garnered the most votes which, according to festival director Jeff Chandler, amounted to over 1000 votes in total.

"We just wanted to nurture emerging artists, give them a showcase in a variety of settings with a competitive element," he said. "People don't appreciate the work a young artist has to do, to get people to listen to them, especially with all the competing streaming services these days."

For Tane-Rua, it's all part of the experience he feels he needs to gain on his journey to the main stage, where he wants to be.

Help keep us up to date!

Please submit your events, with location and time to wintonheraleditor@gmail.com

The WBTA hopes to have your event in our calendar at least two weeks prior to its occurrence to give those living out of town a chance to attend. In the past, many have commented that they did not know an event was on until it was too late - we are hoping to change that!

It started when he joined the Central West Music Makers after school as an outlet from shed work or pizza delivery jobs, which resulted in lots of gigs, including busking at the first Way out West festival, where they were joined on the street by Sheppard.

He and Lilly Alexander are both studying contemporary music performance at the JMC Academy in South Brisbane, where they're getting chances to play with other musicians and break into the wider scene.

"I want to eventually break into the American scene, like Keith (Urban)," Tane-Rua said.

Festival patrons packing Winton's streets and pubs gave he and the other rising stars plenty of encouragement over six days of the music feast.

Jeff Chandler said this year's festival had been a whole lot harder to run, thanks to the impact of COVID, and had probably added 25 per cent to running costs.

"With what happened in Brisbane, we had to move programming and resources - indoor had to be moved outdoor, which changed again," he said.

"We had to anticipate a lot of things.

"I never slept a wink, waiting for the Premier's announcement - we had 28 people in Brisbane waiting to build a set, and artists that had booked flights.

"Then there was additional work ticking the health boxes, but thankfully people were very generally good about mask wearing, taking it seriously and checking in everywhere."

Mr Chandler said somewhere between 4000 and 5000 visitors had travelled to Winton for the event, while they had 3700 paying customers through the gates. He said that had met their targets.

"We could have gone bigger but then you need the amenities to match.

"The feedback has been very positive - the festival had a real celebratory feel to it." The best sight was families enjoying themselves together.

"We don't measure success by the amount of alcohol sold," he said. "Council's measure is increased tourism and we delivered on that.

"Running it for six days, starting with Waltzing Matilda Day on April 6, gave people a lot more time to spend in town."

Official visitors included the Assistant Minister for COVID Economic Recovery Bart Mellish, who replaced Tourism Minister Stirling Hinchliffe at the last minute, and Moreton Bay councillor Darren Grimwade, honouring the sister city arrangement with Winton.

Both the state government and the Moreton Bay Regional Council sponsored the event.

As to whether the festival turned a profit, Mr Chandler said it was hard to know at this stage, with refunds and other amounts still to be factored in.

Waltzing Matilda Celebrations

Article and Photos by Jeff Close

Waltzing Matilda Day has been observed on the 6th April for some years now, and this year to add to the experience of Way Out West Festival visitors to the town, the Waltzing Matilda Board of Directors decided to hold two days of activities.

On the Tuesday, 19 people aboard the Council bus and followed by 4 tag-a-long vehicles headed out to Combo Waterhole. With Mayor Gavin at the wheel and Jeff offering commentary en route and at Combo and Kynuna, much of the Waltzing Matilda history was covered. A special feature of the day was the recollections of 3 of the group (John Maxwell, Prue Strang and Lyn Fraser) of the 1963 visit to Combo of the Cobb and Co coach. (Coincidentally, Movietone news shot some footage on the day and this film footage is played even today at the Royal Theatre Nostalgia Nights on Wednesdays.) Australia's unofficial national anthem was sung, and the party moved on to Kynuna Hotel for lunch and refreshments. A tour of Kynuna was conducted and the contribution to exploring the history of Waltzing Matilda by Richard Magoffin remembered before heading back to Winton. When the bar staff at the hotel commented to Gavin that trading had been brisk and asked whether such tours would be a regular feature, the Mayor answered in the affirmative, and "Yes, regularly every year."

The mystery of who welded up the Combo Waterhole sign MAY have been answered with the smart money drifting to John Archer. John reputedly had the first welder in the district.

The next day at the centre a team of volunteers offered extra hands-on experiences to patrons. Jeff conducted a whip cracking school, Bente Moller had plenty of wool spinners, John Paynter with the assistance of David Strang shore 2 sheep and answered questions and Lorraine Murphy of WDHS offered guided tours. Jeff gave a talk on Banjo, Waltzing Matilda, and QANTAS. All aspects were well patronised, with up to 40 persons present at any one time.

"Come on Winton, we can dance again!"

Originally published by Sally Gall, Queensland Country Life.

The joy shown by musicians finally able to do what they love best - perform in front of a live audience - was only matched at Winton's 2021 Way out West festival by the excited vibe of a crowd freed from many of the restrictions of the last 12 months.

As Beccy Cole said, "I haven't done this out in the beautiful sunshine for more than a year - I feel like crying".

After being cancelled last year, thousands of people snapped up tickets to once again boogie in the bush and check out Winton's opal and dinosaur attractions as well, in an atmosphere of country hospitality.

In an anthem to the pleasure of being an Australian in the Queensland outback, The Wolfe Brothers put together a medley of Great Southern Land by Icehouse, Hunters and Collectors' Holy Grail, the ever-popular Angels Am I Ever Going to See Your Face Again, and AC/DC's Back in Black, much to the delight of the mosh pit.

The Wolfe Brothers let it rip for an appreciative audience on the main stage at the Way Out West Festival. Photos - Sally Gall.

MOTORSPORT FAMILY FUN DAY

PhotoStory Jeff Close

Organisers of the Winton Motorsport Family Fun Day should be congratulated on organising a great day out at the track last weekend. And they were rewarded with terrific weather and a large crowd. Seen in the parking lot were many vehicles making their way south after the successful Way Out West Festival.

The day/night meeting hosted the ever popular 1/8 mile drag races as well as the dirt bikes at a 'come and try' day. A courtesy bus worked all day, food and drinks were available. Club funds were boosted by merchandise sales and raffles. The live entertainment in the evening rounded off a fun day. Not many Australian country towns can boast facilities as found in Winton. Well done volunteers.
